Market Sentiment and Investor Attitudes: Impacts and Implications for IROs

Wednesday, January 15, 2020
12:00 pm - 1:00 pm ET
Click here for the program time in your area

Please join the NIRI Virtual Chapter's January program for this engaging session. RBC Wealth Management Technical Strategist, Bob Dickey, will share his analysis of trends in the market and how they are created from the sentiment and attitudes of investors and the general public. Join us for a discussion of what's happening in the stock market today, how it compares to prior periods, and what IROs should expect in the future. Bob provides his unique perspective on trends in investor sentiment, what is driving them, and his views on the implications for IROs. Bob shares a variety of market indicators and his analysis to provide insight for the NIRI Virtual audience.

Learning Objectives: At the end of this program participants will be able to:

- Recognize key trends in investor sentiment
- Explain sentiment drivers and current market trends
- Identify differences in market segments vs. market cycles
- Discuss implications of investor attitudes for IROs

Speaker:
Bob Dickey
Managing Director, Technical Strategist
RBC Wealth Management

Bob Dickey has been with RBC Wealth Management for over 45 years in several roles that have all had a focus on working with the firm's advisors and the equity markets. Bob has a large following of individual and institutional investors in the U.S. and Canada.

As the firm's Technical Strategist, Bob publishes the "Technical Update," a daily public market commentary, and also a monthly chart pack, "Market Maps," which seek to guide advisors and their clients in the equity, commodity, and fixed income markets. Bob is a past winner of the Business Week Magazine Market Predicting Contest and the Wall Street Journal Dartboard Contest, and was awarded "Best in Business" by Twin Cities Business Monthly Magazine.

Prior to joining the Portfolio Advisory Group in 1988, Bob managed the Options Department for eight years, and also worked for six years in the Margin Department of RBCWM.
Bob is a lifelong resident of Edina, Minnesota where he lives with his wife and three grown children who are still close by. Bob majored in Architecture at the University of Minnesota.

Please plan to attend and prepare your questions for Bob. The session is expected to be quite interactive!

We look forward to your attendance!
