Hanger patient nominated for ESPY Award

June 29, 2009
Hanger Prosthetics & Orthotics patient Jeremy Campbell has been nominated as a finalist for the 2009 ESPY Awards. Campbell won two gold medals at the 2008 Paralympic Games in Beijing last summer. Favored to clinch the title in the pentathlon, Campbell not only took gold, he trounced the competition by nearly 400 points and set a new world record. Campbell captured his second gold medal in the men's discus F44.

The ESPY Awards honor leading athletes and the best achievements in sports from the previous year. Winners in 37 categories are determined by fans voting online at www.espys.tv and via mobile phone at www.espn.mobi . Voting ends July 11, 2009. Actor Samuel L. Jackson will host the 2009 ESPY Awards on July 15, 2009 at the Nokia Theatre in Los Angeles; the taped show will air July 19 on ESPN.

Prosthetic practitioner Chad Simpson, BOCP, LP of Hanger's Oklahoma City patient care center provides Campbell with his prosthetic care.

For more information on Campbell and his athletic achievements, visit his page on Hanger's website or The U.S. Paralympics website.