1. Watch the game on a large, flat-screen HD TV. Television and broadcast technology is now so advanced, many sports fans can enjoy the game in superb, high-definition detail from the best seats in the house...their own living rooms.
2. Surround sound completes the experience and brings the game to life. With today's home theater systems, you'll feel like the players, coaches and fans are right there in the room.
3. Provide comfortable, ample seating for guests. Sectional sofas are ideal, and some even offer fun extras such as cup holders. You can also pull furniture from other rooms in the house, such as a couch from the basement, to make sure everyone is accommodated. Bean bag chairs can be placed on the floor for kids.
4. Ask each guest to bring an appetizer or finger food. Asking everyone to pitch in will not only add variety, but it will take some of the preparation pressure off you. Plus, simple appetizers and finger foods keep it easy for guests (and yourself) by eliminating the need for utensils. All the focus can remain on the game and not on your plate.
5. Add to the excitement with touchdown celebrations. Hand out noisemakers, mini pom-poms and other favors guests can use to cheer and celebrate when their team scores a touchdown.
