MIDWEST CITY, Okla.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Insight School of Oklahoma (ISOK), an online public charter school for students in grades 6-12, is now accepting enrollment applications for the 2021-2022 school year. ISOK provides students throughout the state with the opportunity to reach their academic goals, while planning for their future in an alternative education setting.

ISOK combines online instruction with the support of state-licensed teachers to provide a personalized learning experience for its middle and high school students. Graduates earn a high school diploma, and those who come to ISOK can participate in the school's credit recovery program.

ISOK teachers facilitate lessons during live, interactive online classes, and students can receive support through extended class sessions and with real-time help from teachers. The school offers students the opportunity to progress faster in subjects at which they excel and spend more time on those where they need additional help.

"At ISOK, we believe that helping students reach their full potential requires a personalized approach to learning," said Head of School Jennifer Wilkinson. "We strive to provide all students with the support they need that places them on a path to success."

ISOK teachers interact with students and parents via phone, email, web-based classrooms and online discussions to ensure families feel supported and students feel appropriately challenged as they work towards high school graduation.

Throughout the year, ISOK builds a community of online learners through weekly virtual assemblies, and the school's Social and Emotional Learning program ensures students are ready to learn and succeed after high
