Expansion into Higher Growth Markets

Mergers and Acquisitions Strategy

- Pursuing a measured approach to M&A, focusing on low-risk accretive acquisitions in preferred geographic markets
  - Bias is for a tight, drivable footprint including the Pittsburgh, Columbus, Cleveland, and Cincinnati metro markets
  - Preference for smaller, low-risk market extension deals in new metro markets, or market overlap deals in existing markets that offer strong depositories or cost takeout opportunities
  - Transactions must make sense both strategically and financially

- Building on lessons learned and experience from prior acquisitions – demonstrating an ability to execute and integrate
  - Acquisition of First Community Bank closed on October 1, 2015: Less than 1% dilution to tangible book value per share
  - Acquisition of 13 FirstMerit branches closed on December 2, 2016: 4.5% premium on deposits and immediately accretive to GAAP and cash earnings per share, as low-cost deposits were used to pay down higher-cost borrowings
  - Acquisition of DCB Financial Corp. closed on April 3, 2017: Expanded FCF's footprint and provided a broader geography for mortgage and small business lending growth in central Ohio
  - Acquisition of Foundation Bank closed on May 1, 2018: Immediately accretive to FCF's tangible book value and nominally accretive to FCF's earnings
